Prepared by: Omar Hussein Analyst

: https://www.linkedin.com/in/omar-hussein-analyst-663019400

: https://github.com/omar-data-analys

Final Report

Introduction:

This report is a summary of the analysis of about 29,450 property records offered for sale throughout the geographical area in India, where strategic information such as the price, property area, number of rooms, etc. is attached to the property.

The report concludes with a set of practical recommendations specifically designed to enable investors to make informed investment decisions, based on realistic numbers, to achieve maximum benefit and minimum risk in the Indian market.

NOTE:

Goals of Analysis:

1. Understanding the nature of the Indian real estate market and gaining a general overview of Indian buyer behavior.
2. Analyzing market trends and price determinants across different Indian real estate segments.
3. Providing guidance to investors interested in investing in the Indian real estate market.
4. Identifying the best opportunities based on location (such as popular and coastal cities), property types, and the most suitable buyer demographics to secure the best possible conditions for investing in Indian real estate with the lowest possible risk.

Key Highlights

Most popular city: Bangalore.

Best-selling property type: 2BHK.

Resale rate: 93.4%.

Comprehensive Final Summary:

Market Characteristics:

1- The Indian real estate market is concentrated in major metropolitan areas and coastal cities such as Bangalore, Lalitpur, and Pune. Bangalore is considered the

Prepared by: Omar Hussein Analyst

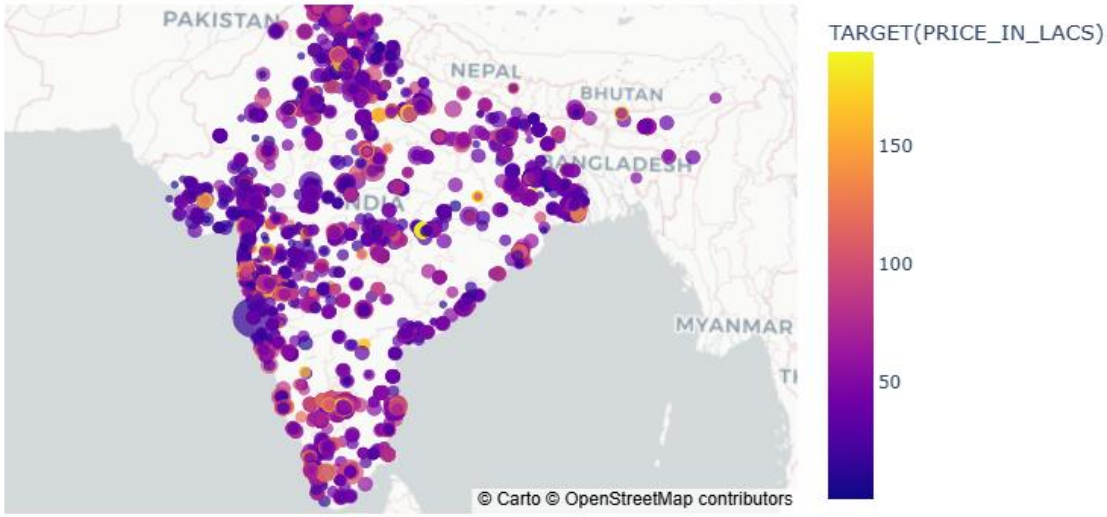
: https://www.linkedin.com/in/omar-hussein-analyst-663019400

: https://github.com/omar-data-analys

engine of the real estate market and the primary choice for investors due to its association with the technology and services sectors.

Distribution Of Rooms on map



2. Competition exists in the real estate market in secondary cities, opening the door to long-term market growth. This presents an opportunity for investors seeking to invest in real estate outside of traditionally congested cities.

---

3. The real estate market is characterized by price flexibility, as the dominant groups in property sales are owners and investors, allowing for ample room for price negotiation.

Prepared by: Omar Hussein Analyst

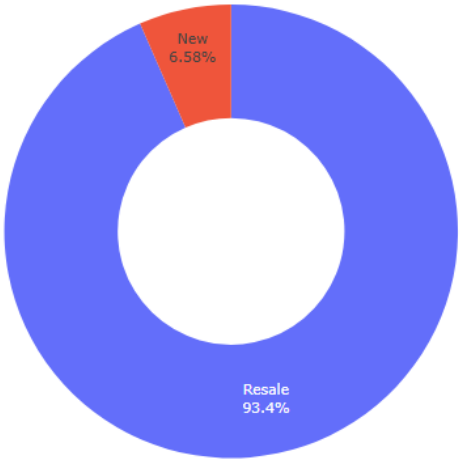
: https://www.linkedin.com/in/omar-hussein-analyst-663019400

: https://github.com/omar-data-analys

4. The market is based on a resale policy, with 94% of sellers (individuals and brokers) and 82% of properties being resold. This reduces the risk of delivery delays for investors.



---

5. The market generally offers a wide range of options for both investors and buyers. The primary pricing criterion for real estate is geographical location. There are opportunities to buy properties with varying numbers of rooms and sizes at prices that do not reflect these factors, thus opening up diverse buying and selling opportunities for both buyers and investors. With larger spaces and more rooms at competitive prices, you can move a little further outside the major cities.

Prepared by: Omar Hussein Analyst

: https://www.linkedin.com/in/omar-hussein-analyst-663019400

: https://github.com/omar-data-analys

From the number of rooms 1 to 4, there is a direct relationship between the price and the number of rooms
More than 4 rooms, the relationship begins to be unstable, as the factor of the number of rooms does not directly affect the price, which indicates that the geographical location factor is influential in the first place.

Buyer's guide:

Northern regions offer an opportunity for those with limited budgets. Leveraging price flexibility to negotiate property prices, especially for relatively high-priced properties that don't meet generally accepted standards.

Investor's Guide:

1. Priorly invest in Bangalore due to the market's connection to the technology and services sectors, which allows for quick cash flow from both sales and rentals.
Secondly, invest in larger cities outside of Bangalore if opportunities don't arise, or in coastal cities.
This is due to the added value of location in raising property prices, allowing for the sale of medium-sized or small properties with 2 or 3 bedrooms at relatively high prices.

2. Focus on ready-to-move-in properties due to the high demand for them among buyers.